Lessons Learned

This project really helped me learn the java programming language. I knew what concepts I wanted to use because it is similar to C++, but this helped me figure out what commands were the correct ones to use. I learned that I should probably learn more from the client in the future to find out exactly what they want. In the first iteration of the “complete” project, it did something else than the client wanted, but it was my idea of what the client wanted. I need to know exactly what it is that I need to do.

Something else I can do is implement outside features like databases, because that could potentially make some of the commands easier. It would be something else I would have to teach myself how to do, but could potentially benefit future projects.
